HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 2nd, 1891.

This Common Lodging-house, by-laws are evidently regarded with strong disfavour by the lodging-house-keepers and police authorities and it is to be feared that any attempt to stringently enforce them would be attended by more or less disorder, possibly a general strike. The coolies are not much influenced by pure reasons, and do not appreciate the fact that the by-laws are intended to contribute to their health and comfort. The arrangement made use of by the lodging-house keepers is that if restrictions are placed on the numbers they are allowed to accommodate they will be compelled to raise their charges, and anything directly affecting his pocket the coolie can understand. It would appear, however, from the figures given by the Registrar-General at the meeting of the Sanitary Board, on Friday, that the accommodation is really in excess of supply, and that overcrowding exists only in lodging-houses situated in the central part of the town. The effect of the by-laws, therefore, would simply be to transfer a number of lodgers from the Central to the Eastern and Western districts and result that there is more than sufficient accommodation for them there. It is doubtful whether the keepers of the houses at present overcrowded would be able to put up their rates.
These men have it in their power, however, to make things very uncomfortable in the Colony by playing on the credulity of their lodgers, and it seems worth while considering whether it would not be well to bring the by-laws into operation gradually by applying them in the first instance to certain districts only. In the Eastern and Western districts the houses are not overcrowded and consequently no opposition need be expected in those quarters. As to the Central district, the only one where overcrowding exists, if the coolies have a strong objection to moving to the outskirts of the town the difficulty might be met by the Government renting or buying a few tenements and having them conducted as model lodging-houses under strict supervision as to overcrowding and cleanliness. The coolies would appreciate the improved accommodation offered by such houses and the keepers of the present overcrowded ones would be compelled in their own interest to work up to the same standard in order to keep any considerable number of their lodgers. What by this means overcrowding had been reduced the Government might safely bring the by-laws into operation in order to prevent the evil springing up again, and might then if it thought fit gradually refine from the scheme. In the meantime there need be little or no expense to the ratepayers, while there might possibly be a little profit.
The Government having acquired the necessary houses would place them in charge of suitable men who should be bound not to charge the lodgers more than certain sums, and to keep the houses open to inspection at all times. The establishment of a few model lodging-houses of the kind described would be attended with other advantages besides the mere prevention of overcrowding.

early as possible.

The Hon. Poole says—It is rumored that the Chinese authorities have commissioned an expedition to the patrol the Yangtze river in disguise. He is dressed like a common trader and has a fast boat heavily armed and containing a strong crew. His mission is to obtain secret information and to watch the floating population on the water.

The Times correspondent of the Mercury announces that the Emperor of China has con-and valuable services in connection with the railway and mining interests of China.

Another person was rescued from the ruins of the fallen houses in Wellington Street, Redfern, yesterday morning. The policeman on duty heard movement proceeding from the ruins and at once communicated with the Central Police Station.
A body of Police were at once sent down and after about an hour's work extricated a man who had been buried there. His injuries were not found to be of a very serious nature.

The U.S. steamer Charleston arrived at Woosung on Saturday evening, the 24th October, from the port of the Monongahela, in which Admiral Robens came up to Shanghai on the 23rd. The Monongahela is bound for the upper E. and S. buoy, and will remain there till the end of the week, perhaps, when she will leave with the Admiral for the Empress. The Charleston will then take up her berth.—

The Hon. Poole writes—The Wu-chang authorities have received a communication from the captain of the naval leaders of the Koloa Society of the Yangtze River, Wo-chang, Wu-chang.
The Koloa magistrates with a strong party made the capture as desired, while the Yangtze magistrate also made an arrest. The affair was managed with the utmost secrecy, and it is reported that the prisoners are to be sent to Nanjing, and that they are men of importance in Mercury.

The Shanghai native paper has the following note—A pretty little mandarin was purchased yesterday morning, before the Council I will give notice that he was captured at the following resolution—“That in view of the opinion expressed at the meeting of the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography held in London on 11th August last, I beg to move that the Government appoint a commission composed of medical men to investigate and report on the whole subject of the asphyxia or otherwise of retaining Section 26 in the proposed new Ordinance to consolidate and amend the laws relating to merchant shipping.”
